

GOOD TALKS

with Rachel Hansen

Rachel is a health & wellbeing educator and has taught psychology and health at schools in the UK and New Zealand. Rachel has a first-class honours degree in Psychology and a Masters degree in Criminology from Cambridge University (UK). She has extensive experience working with young people in a number of fields and is a talented presenter with an ability to engage effectively with her audience. Her workshops are interactive and engaging and she uses humour and honesty to create an excellent learning environment.

The 'birds & the bees' made easy...

Do you have young children?

Do you cringe with fear when you think of 'The Big Talk'?

Are you wondering how much information is "too much"?

Are you worried about how, what, when and even if you will discuss periods, intercourse, wet dreams, erections, relationships...?

Are you anxious about whether you even know 'enough' yourself to teach your children?

Join child sexuality educator Rachel Hansen for a relaxed, fun and informative evening that will give you the knowledge and confidence to successfully guide your children's sexuality education, from birth through to adolescence.

Get together a group of friends

(or just yourself, and maybe a partner too)

and Rachel can join you at your preferred location.

(food encouraged, wine welcome, laughter compulsory)
